1 CHILDREN VILLAGE

The children's village takes action for orphaned and abandoned children. They build and strengthen families for the children to live in and grow with love, security and respect. There are a total of 17 houses in the village and each home will accommodate eight to ten children. Each child is cared for as part of the family, and the children are raised like brothers and sisters. The head of the family is the "Mother", who provides the children with the affection and security they need for their sound development. The mother is supported by an Aunt and together they run the household. Household activities include all normal family activities, working within a budget, cooking, washing clothes, helping with homework etc. The village also has a park and recreation area, a kindergarten school, a library, a community hall and a youth house for children over the 16. Volunteering activities will include helping in the mornings with young children who are not at kindergarten yet, helping at the kindergarten, helping older children with homework after school, entertaining and playing games with the children, helping the housemother with children's daily activities, and could include helping with lunches, supper and cleaning.

2 HOUSE OF CARE

Dating back to 1881, this organization occupies a large property in the Cape Town district of Vredehoek. In the main building, they take care of elderly people and a few years back some smaller buildings were added for toddlers and disabled school children from disadvantaged communities. As a non-profit organization, the House of Care recognizes and appreciates the contributions made by local and foreign volunteers. Like House of Care employees, the volunteer force consists of people of all ages, backgrounds and races. Volunteers come from diverse cultures and different countries, and bring a variety of experience. Volunteers can choose whether they would like to get involved with the elderly, or with toddlers and disabled children. Depending on their qualifications and experience, the volunteer may be assigned to work with the people directly, or may be assigned to help in the field of administration and fund raising. Working with people – both the elderly and children - can be extremely rewarding. The wonderful location makes this project especially attractive to anyone who wants to do community work.

3 NOAH NOAH

is a dynamic organisation, involved in a number of projects. Their main focus is on providing community houses for elderly people who are still active, but can't or don't want to live on their own. The project runs a number of residential houses, each shared by 6 to 12 people, and there is also a common house for joint activities. NOAH also runs a "soap project": Old soap is collected from hotels. People from poor communities then recycle this soap to provide them with a small income. Another NOAH project is the "food distribution system": NOAH buys basic food supplies and sells them on to people in need at reduced wholesaler rates.

4 NEW HOPE COMMUNITY

The foundation behind the New Hope Community is a nonprofit organisation which focuses on social development. The projects help to develop people to the point of self-reliance by helping to establish pre-schools, adult training programmes, health care services and education programmes. The foundation also assists in the rehabilitation of children at risk through bridging education programmes. They help build responsible individuals who are equipped and willing to contribute to the life of their communities and to the economic and social well being

5 BIRDS & PRIMATE WORLD

Bird & Primate World is the largest bird park in Africa and a well known tourist attraction. Over 3000 birds (and small animals) of 400 different species are displayed in more than 100 spacious landscaped walk-through aviaries, allowing the most intimate closeness with nature.

They get a close-up view of them as they feed, sing, display, socialize, build nests and incubate eggs – an unforgettable experience. Volunteers will receive training during their first week. They will then start working in either the bird or the primate section. Work will include feeding and nursing as well as cleaning and some administration. Accommodation will be organised in Hout Bay.

6 SHARK PROJECT

The Shark project has been introduced to study sharks and to bring tourists closer to these fascinating creatures. They operate one boat for scientific research and several boats for tourist activities.

The research includes: Previously unstudied environmental parameters affecting Great White Shark movement patterns and utilisation of their environment in South Africa./ Comparative studies of the sharks' behaviour in our area versus other shark populations in the Eastern Cape of South Africa./ Identification of individual sharks by their dorsal fins./ Wound healing./ Environmental factors affecting shark sightings during cage dives./ Movement patterns of dolphins. Volunteers are primarily here to work closely with sharks and tourists. The majority of sea time is spent aboard Shark Fever as a crew member, helping out with cage diving operations. For volunteers who show a good work ethic, time aboard Lwazi may also be available. Volunteers staying for longer than one month may also have the opportunity to be a part of tracking teams (usually teams have 10- 12 hour shifts at sea). Volunteers will be normally be scheduled for 1-2 trips per day, though this depends on volunteer numbers/ space on the boat. Volunteers will have the opportunity to help collect and enter data. Accommodation and transport is arranged by the project.

7 AFRICAN HORIZON

Situated between Port Elizabeth and Jeffreys Bay, the Animal Rehabilitation Centre feeds and cares for stranded and injured animals. This project has a true need for volunteers to support with time and funding. The Centre boasts in excess of forty species of wildlife, including Cheeta, Giraffe, Zebra, Impala, Blesbok, Duiker, Bushbuck, Monkeys, and a huge selection of bird species. Some animals that can't be free-roaming are kept in enclosures, but most of the larger animals roam freely on the reserve. This project is ideal for people who love nature and (wild) animals as well as for those with a passion for helping save endangered wildlife in South Africa. The area this project is located in is not affected by malaria, and it is therefore not necessary to take malaria precautions, as it would be for projects in the Kruger Park area. Volunteers will be involved in many aspects of conservation and wildlife care: When there are newborn animals, volunteers will have the opportunity to care for them. This means being responsible for the young animal's wellbeing and upbringing/ Giving the young comfort, feeding them with milk formula from a bottle and replacing their mother in all ways/ Cuddling and just sitting with young animals helps them to grow strong. Interacting with the public extends to assisting our staff in training and conservation awareness./ Assisting with upkeep of the reserve. For example maintenance, removal and identification of alien vegetation etc./ Upkeep and improvement of animal enclosures.

8 WHITE LION PROJECT

The White Lion Project's primary objective is the 'world-first' reintroduction of White Lions back to the wild in their endemic area – the Greater Timbavati region. The project operates within a modern conservation paradigm: conservation through sustainable development, with particular emphasis on community participation, education and cultural upliftment. The project offers an exclusive opportunity for suitable participants to volunteer at the TSAU Centre for White Lion Reintroduction. Successful candidates are trained as active members of the scientific monitoring and research team. Participants have a unique opportunity to gain hands-on game-ranging experience whilst making a valuable contribution to the long-term conservation of the white lions. Participants in the fields of conservation, environmental science, wildlife management, ecology or wildlife biology, wildlife journalism, wildlife photography, veterinary science, animal behavior studies, or related fields will benefit from the scientific aspects of the project. Participants with a genuine interest in sustainable conservation, who wish to make a practical contribution to the protection of the white lions, their habitat and the sustainable living of surrounding communities can participate in related programmes. Accommodation and transport are arranged by the project. Participants need flexibility, adaptability and self-sufficiency.
